GENERAL ALLEGATIONS

6. Defendant manufactures and sells skincare and other personal care products under its Dermalogica brand in over 80 countries around the world.

7. Defendant's products include in-home products as well as a specialist offering for professional skin care therapists.

8. The Dermalogica brand is sold in locations where there is a licensed skincare professional who can provide customers training and advice on how to address various skin conditions that Defendant's products are designed to remedy.

9. Since 1993, SSS has been the exclusive distributor of Defendant's products in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana (the "Territory"), pursuant to distribution agreements that have been renewed over the years.

10. The current terms of the parties' exclusive distributorship agreement are set forth in that certain Distribution Agreement dated January 1, 2016 (the "Distribution Agreement").

11. Pursuant to the Distribution Agreement, Defendant agreed it would not sell any of its products to another distributor in SSS's territory.

12. The Distribution Agreement permits Defendant to sell products directly to certain retail customers (defined as "Key Account Customers") in

1 SSS's territory.

2
3 13. Defendant has threatened to enter, or has entered, into an agreement
4 with third party SalonCentric for distribution of Dermalogica products in SSS's
5 exclusive territory.

6
7 14. SalonCentric is a nationwide wholesale salon and beauty supply
8 distributor.

9
10 15. SalonCentric's own website and promotional materials describe the 11 company as a distributor.

12
13 16. SalonCentric operates hundreds of stores throughout the United
14 States and sells exclusively to licensed professionals.

15
16 17. Only licensed professionals are permitted to enter SalonCentric's
17 stores.

18 18. SalonCentric is not a retail outlet.

19
20 19. The parties agreed that California law will govern the construction,
21 interpretation, validity and enforcement of the Distribution Agreement and will 22 be applied to resolve all disputes between them.

23
24 20. Pursuant to the Distribution Agreement, and the parties' previous 25 agreements over the years, Defendant provided substantial assistance to SSS and 26 exercise substantial control over SSS's business.
27
28

1           21. SSS has and continues to markets goods and services under
2 Defendant's trademarks and other intellectual property rights pursuant to a
3 marketing plan or system prescribed in substantial part by Defendant, and there
4 has been and continues to be a community interest between the parties in the
5 goods and services sold under Defendant's marks.
6

7
8           22. To obtain the exclusive distribution rights and right to use
9 Defendant's marks, SSS has been required to make certain non-de minimus
10 payments for the right to sell Defendant's goods and services that were not
11 limited to the bona fide wholesale price of the goods.
12
13

14           23. SSS is current on all its payment and other obligations to Defendant
15 under the Distribution Agreement.
16

17           24. At no time before offering the Distribution Agreement or any prior
18 distribution agreements to SSS did Defendant ever provide SSS with a franchise
19 offering circular or franchise disclosure document in accordance with 20 California's Franchise Investment Law.
21

22           25. Over the years, SSS has invested substantial time and money in 23 building name recognition for and brand equity in Defendant's products.
24

25           26. SSS has cultivated its relationships with many salons and skin care
26 professionals, who have grown to associate SSS as the sole and exclusive source
27
28

1 of Dermalogica products.

2           27. Defendant's transaction with SalonCentric will diminish and
3
4 terminate rights previously granted to SSS as the exclusive dealer of
5 Defendant's products in the Territory, for reasons unrelated to SSS's
6
7 performance and without good cause.

8           28. If Defendant is allowed to sell products to SalonCentric or other
9
10 third-party distributors for sale in the Territory, SSS will suffer irreparable
11 injury to its reputation and goodwill.

12           29. The loss of that goodwill will threaten SSS's market share as a 13
14 provider of skin care products if it is not adequately and immediately remedied
15 through injunctive relief.

16
17           30. SalonCentric is a direct competitor of SSS, and if it is allowed to 18
19 start selling Defendant's products in the Territory, it will undermine the 20 relationships that SSS has built up, and Defendant will be put at real risk of 21 losing customers and accounts.

22
23           31. SSS's sales revenues over the last three years have averaged more
24 than $3.8 million per year.

25           32. If SalonCentric starts distributing Defendant's products in the 26
27 Territory, SSS stands to lose significant business, and potentially half of its 28

1 revenues.

2

5 33. SSS repeats and realleges the allegations of the foregoing
